

Seven Million Dollars Spent in Research

Over 7 million dollars is being spent in research and research-related activities at the University, President Carroll announced last month. This total, which includes over 6.5 million dollars for specifically sponsored research, embraces 157 projects.

In terms of project numbers, the School of Medicine leads all areas in the University. Approximately 1.4 million dollars from various sponsors supports the research activities in that School.

The largest program of research is that of the Human Resources Research Office. This research in training methods and motivation, morale, and leadership is under contract with the United States Army.

Research projects are also being conducted in the Columbian College of Arts and Sciences; the School of Engineering; the School of Government, Business, and International Affairs; and the National Law Center. Some projects are directly under the supervision of the Dean for Sponsored Research, Dr. Benjamin D. Van Evera.

In addition to the work financed by research grants and contracts, over 450 thousand dollars in grant funds is currently being used at the University for fellowships, training awards, and purchases of equipment.

A recent grant of $161,073 from the National Institutes of Health will support a study of American drinking practices. The study is designed to increase understanding of the significance of drinking in American culture. Project Director for the study will be Dr. Ira H. Cisin, who was Director of the nationally-recognized Drinking Practices Study conducted by the California Department of Public Health from 1959 to 1961. Dr. Arthur Kirsch, research psychologist and University alumnus, has been granted leave of absence from Datatrol Corporation of Silver Spring, Md., to serve as Associate Director of the Project.

DEAN KAYSER

Dr. Elmer Louis Kayser, Dean of the Division of University Students at the University, has been named Historian of the University.

September first of this year will mark the retirement date of Dean Kayser as Dean of the Division of University Students, a position he has held since the Division was established in 1930. He will then terminate a 44-year career as an administrative officer of the University.

In addition to his new assignment as Historian, Dr. Kayser will continue in his faculty rank as Professor of European History and will teach in the fields of European civilization and ancient history.

What's New in Your University

A program leading to a Master's degree with a major field in Nursing Home Administration, the first of its kind to be offered in the United States, will begin at the University this fall. The University has been engaged in research pertaining to the development of curriculum material for this program for over two years. Students in the new program will work toward the degree of Master of Business Administration, and will take courses in business and the administration of health care facilities as well as highly specialized courses dealing with nursing home administration. Coordinator for the program is Professor Frederick H. Gibbs, who is also Coordinator of the Master's program in Hospital Administration. This program has been expanded so that students may work toward the degree of Doctor of Business Administration with a major field in Hospital Administration.

An Act of Congress which provides up to $2,500,000 in matching funds for expansion of the University Hospital was signed by President Kennedy on June 1. These funds must be matched by private subscription. Two substantial gifts have already been donated, $1,000,000 by Mrs. Agnes Meyer and $250,000 by the Ford Foundation. When additional funds are raised, the total will be used to build and equip a new wing and to modernize the present structure.

An Orientation Reception Center in the University's Alumni Lounge in Bacon Hall will be open September 12 through 15, during the week prior to registration. Under the supervision of the Office of Educational Counseling, the Center will provide information for parents and incoming students about the University.

Because of need for additional space, the Human Resources Research Office of the University will move on or about October 1 from its present location at 2013 G Street, N.W., to the new Fidelity Building, which is being built at the corner of North Washington and Queen Streets in Alexandria, Va. A continuing contract between the University and the Department of the Army, providing for HumRRO, as an agency of the University, to conduct psychological research, is in its eleventh year of operation and will remain basically unchanged by the relocation. Building D, which HumRRO now occupies, will become classrooms and offices.

HOMECOMING

The 1962 Homecoming Queen will be crowned on Wednesday evening, October 31, at Lisner Auditorium, preceding a performance of a musical comedy by the students. The musical performance will be repeated on Thursday evening, November 1, and Saturday afternoon, November 3.

The annual Float Parade will be held on Friday, November 2, at noon, and the Homecoming Game at D. C. Stadium will begin at 8 that evening.

The annual Homecoming Ball will be held Saturday, November 3, at 10 p.m., at the National Guard Armory.

The University will conduct an In-Service Institute in Chemistry for high school teachers in the Washington metropolitan area during the coming academic year. A grant from the National Science Foundation will defray costs of tuition and travel for teachers who are accepted for the Institute. Dr. Charles R. Naeser, Chairman of the Department of Chemistry, is Director of the Institute.

A series of intensive fallout shelter analysis courses for professional engineers and architects was conducted this summer by the University's School of Engineering for the Federal Government. The courses included instruction in subjects such as the effects of nuclear weapons, structure of matter, attenuation of nuclear radiation, shielding methodology, and space and environmental engineering. They were designed for individuals from Federal agencies with a responsibility for planning, designing, reviewing, or approving building plans, and for architects and engineers from firms engaged primarily in the design of commercial and institutional buildings. Raymond R. Fox, Associate Professor of Civil Engineering, served as course director.

A series of studies on the practices and problems with respect to industrial property during the current period of increasing industrialization in Latin America is being undertaken by the University's Patent, Trademark, and Copyright Foundation.

The Dance Production Groups of the University, under the direction of Professor Elizabeth Burtner, culminated its 1961-62 season with two April events: a lecture-demonstration on Modern Dance as one session of the Humanities Seminar, a year's course given to a select group of senior students from the three Arlington County, Va., high schools; and a dance program, The Language of Movement, for seventh grade students of Loudoun and Fauquier Counties in Virginia, as part of the Middleburg Community Center's Educational Project.

Help the Alumni Fund set a new record. We are out to break all alumni giving records this year. During 1961, only 10.3 per cent of our alumni contributed to annual giving. We are hoping for a sizable increase in amount contributed and in percentage of alumni participation.

Record Number Attend Medical Alumni Day

Attendance records were set at Medical Alumni Day on June 2 at both the Scientific Program in the morning, where 92 alumni were registered, and at the Annual Banquet in the evening, with 350 in attendance, including 90 per cent of this year's graduating class.

At the morning Scientific Program, twelve outstanding alumni selected from the five-year anniversary classes preceding 1962 presented papers on subjects including "Alcoholism," "Medical Care for the Aged," "Electronic Computers in Medicine," and "Aviation Physiology."

Colonial Gridders Face Toughest Season

Within a fortnight George Washington's football squad will be hard at work preparing for the toughest schedule in the University's history—a ten-game card which includes Army, Syracuse, and West Virginia.

Drills are slated to start August 30 after a day devoted to photographers and TV newsreel cameramen, and will continue on a two-a-day basis for at least nine days. The season opens with a night game at Lynchburg, Va., on September 15 against V.M.I., one of three games the Colonials will play on the road at the start of the campaign.

Coach Jim Camp's team plays its first home game the night of October 5 against Furman, one of the rising powers of the Southern Conference. The red-letter day on the home calendar, though, is October 27, when famed coach Paul Dietzel, formerly of L.S.U., brings his first Army team to D. C. Stadium for the first GW-Army game in history. It could result in the largest crowd ever to see a collegiate game in Washington.

Two other home games will find the Colonials at the Stadium against Boston University on October 13 and against Richmond in the homecoming contest on November 2.

School, George Washington has high hopes of reversing last year's fortunes which left them with a 3-6 record (Three of those six losses came by an overall total of ten points). Drummond, a sophomore last year, lived up to all his rave notices when he led his team in every offensive department—ground-gaining, scoring, pass-receiving, kickoff and punt returns. Selectors of 1962 All-Americans will have their eyes on him from the outset this fall.
